Privacy Policy

Privacy and protection of personal information

This Privacy Notice explains how The Gem & Mineral Shows UK Ltd obtains, uses and discloses your personal data and how you can contact us if you have any questions or want to exercise any of your privacy rights. References to “we” and “us” in this Privacy Notice are references to The Gem & Mineral Shows UK Ltd.

The Gem & Mineral Shows UK Ltd, is the controller of your data. The Gem & Mineral Shows UK Ltd takes its privacy responsibilities seriously and has implemented measures designed to protect your personal data and ensure compliance with applicable laws. For information about how to contact us, please go to Section 13.

1. How we get personal data about you

We may get personal data directly from you, for example, if you:

- Visit or interact with any of our websites
- Purchase any of our products, sign up to receive our services or attend our events
- Sign up to receive newsletters or other promotional information from us
- Supply goods and services to us
- Otherwise interact with us in any way (e.g. by giving us your business card or contact details in person, or make an enquiry about collaboration).

We may also get personal data about you indirectly from third parties, for example from:

- Social media sites
- Third party organised events and meetings

2. What personal data do we get about you

The personal data we get about you may include any of the following (depending on the nature of our relationship):

- Personal and business contact details – such as your name, address, email address, telephone/mobile phone (personal and/or business), company you work for, company address, your job title/position

- Customer details and purchase history – such as details of products or services purchased, and order, shipping and billing details
- Marketing preferences – such as whether or not you have asked to receive marketing communications from us and what type of information you are interested in receiving
- Interactions with our online services and website(s) – such as how many times you visit our site or use our services, which pages you go to, traffic data, location data and the originating domain name of your internet service provider (obtained through the use of cookies on this site – see further Section 10 for how we used cookies)
- Data from social media sources – if you provide information about yourself on third party websites or social media sites, we may use that information to get to know you better and for our marketing purposes
- Data from third parties – if you have a relationship with third parties with whom we do business (for example, teachers and facilitators), then we may obtain from those parties limited personal information about you, such as name, contact details, your location and the organisation for whom you work (if relevant).

When you fill in one of our forms, we will indicate where the provision of specific personal data is mandatory in order for you to receive the product or service you are requesting. If you do not provide this mandatory information (e.g. your name and address when purchasing a product, or your email address when signing up for our newsletter) we will not be able to complete your request.

3. Purposes for which we use your personal data

We may use and disclosure your personal data (which we obtain as described above) for any of the following purposes:

- Providing products and services to you – including processing your personal data for the purpose of account administration and management, order fulfilment, delivery, managing customer relations, billing and payment administration, fraud detection and prevention, providing customer support services, notifying you of developments in products and services which we believe will be relevant to your interest, and handling complaints and enquiries.
- Direct marketing, including profiling and analytics – including processing your personal data to send you direct marketing communications, profiling and analysing customer interests, behaviour and preferences (to help us better understand our customers, improve our products and services and provide more tailored marketing communications and enhance customer satisfaction), marketing research.
- Conducting our business, administration and management – including administering and managing our business activities, contracts and relationships with customers, suppliers and partners; maintaining our website(s); providing services to customers; managing and responding to data subject requests; and giving effect to customer marketing preferences

- Online tracking and analysis – including using cookies and similar technologies to track visitors to our sites and measure and analyse their use of our sites – see further Section 10.

4. Disclosures of your personal data

We will only disclose your data to business we work with and are in contract with to execute the required products for services, for example providing a class facilitator with a list of attendees.

Typically in this situation, your personal data is limited (e.g. name and contact number). Rest assured that we will put in place safeguards to protect your personal data whenever we make such a disclosure and if we disclose your data to our third-party service providers, we will ensure it is protected under an appropriate contract and only used by our providers in connection with the services.

5. How long we keep your personal data

We will keep your personal data for as long as necessary in connection with the purpose for which we have obtained it (see Section 3).

6. Legal basis for processing

As the controller of your personal data, The Gem & Mineral Shows UK Ltd is responsible for complying with applicable data protection laws. When we collect, use and otherwise process your personal data (for the purposes described in Section 3) we do so based on the following legal grounds:

- Where you purchase products or services from us, we process your personal data on the legal basis that it is necessary for the performance of the contract for the sale of those products and services, including taking payment, delivery and related after sales activities
- Where we process your personal data for direct marketing, including profiling and analytics, we do so on the legal basis that you have either given us your consent (e.g. by ticking an opt in box) or it is in our legitimate interests to do so provided that our interests do not override your interests that require protection of your personal data
- Where we process your personal data for administration and management, we do so on the legal basis that it is in our legitimate interests to do so provided that our interests do not override your interests that require protection of your personal data
- Where we process your personal data in connection with the use of cookies and similar technologies, we will do so on the legal basis that we have obtained your consent (this is requested when you first land on our website).

Where you have consented to the processing of your data, you may withdraw that consent at any time by contacting us – see Section 13.

7. Managing your marketing preferences

When we process your personal data for marketing purposes, as described in Section 3 and Section 6, we may contact you by email, SMS and/or post, as well as by telephone (if you have provided us with your number). You can unsubscribe from marketing communications at any time by:

- Contacting us using the details in Section 13
- Clicking on the unsubscribe link in any marketing message you receive from us

Please note it can take up to 30 days for your unsubscribe request to be implemented and for future communications to cease, in that time you may receive messages that have already been scheduled for sending.

8. Your privacy rights

Under EU data protection laws, you have the right to:

- Access your personal data – you have the right to receive a copy of the personal data we hold about you. We may require the request to be in writing, accompanied by proof of identity (to ensure we only provide the data to the right person)
- Withdraw your consent to direct marketing – you can exercise your right to withdraw consent to marketing at any time by contacting us and telling us you no longer want to receive marketing from us
- Rectification – if you think any of the personal data we hold about you is inaccurate, you can ask us to correct it. Simply contact us and include your name, address and/or email address (this will help us ensure we accept amendments only from the correct person – we may ask for proof of identity in some cases)
- Restriction – in limited circumstances you may be able to require us to restrict our processing of your personal data. For example, if you consider the data, we hold is inaccurate and we disagree with you, the processing of that data may be restricted until the accuracy has been verified
- Erasure – you may ask us to delete your data if you think that we no longer have a lawful basis for holding onto it, or if you just want to withdraw your consent to our use. Please contact us and tell us what data you want us to delete and why
- Portability – in limited circumstances you may be entitled to have the personal data you have provided to us sent electronically to you so that you can provide it to another organisation
- Complain to the Information Commissioner’s Office – you have the right to lodge a complaint with the Information Commissioner’s Officer if you think our processing of your personal data infringes applicable law. You can find information on how to do this at ico.org.uk

To exercise any of your rights, please contact us using the details set out in Section 13.

9. Security

We take the security of personal data very seriously.

Personal data on our systems is only accessible by appropriately trained staff who need to access your personal data as part of their job. All access is tracked through individual login credentials and audit trails.

We only use third party service providers where we are satisfied that the security, they provide for your personal data is at least as protective as the security we use ourselves.

10. Cookies

We use cookies when you visit our website(s). For more information, please see our Cookie Policy.

If you do not want to accept cookies, you can change your browser settings so that cookies are not accepted. If you do this, please be aware that you may lose some of the functionality of this website. For further information about cookies, including how to disable them, please go to AboutCookies.org.

11. Links to other websites

Please note, our website may contain links to other websites that are not controlled by us. These links are provided for your convenience. We are only responsible for our privacy practices and our security. We recommend you check the privacy policies for any other websites that you visit.

12. Changes to this Privacy Notice

Privacy laws and practice are constantly developing, and we aim to meet industry standards. Our policies and procedures are, therefore, under regular review. We may, from time to time, update our security and privacy policies. We will ensure our website has our most up to date Privacy Notice and suggest you check this page periodically to review our latest version.
